Auto Stalled In Road Results In Liquor Seizure

One hundred and seventy-four gallons of moonshine whiskey was captured near Martinsville last night under peculiar circumstances. Two automobiles, a five passenger Studebaker and a Buick roadster were also confiscated but no arrests were made. Officers making the haul were Prehibition Officer Grady Stultz, and police officers H. W. Stultz and Henry Mende.

Circumstances under which the haul resulted are as follows: A man whose name was not learned was repairing his automobile which had broken down at Mulberry Creek. His machine was diagonally across the road. Two automobiles were seen to come towards the scene and come to halt some distance beyond the broken down car. The men were bootleggers and had evidently thought that revenue agents had blocked the road. They abandoned their machines and fled to the woods and have not been seen since. When the man had repaired his machine he discovered the two abandoned cars full of whiskey, went back to Martinsville and reported the incident to the police who soon had the whiskey and autos in charge. The liquor cars were headed for Danville and it is believed they carried the assignment of booze for consumption in this city.

YEAST NO "FAD" SAY SCIENTISTS

The greatest scientific minds agree that yeast is one of the most important medical discoveries. No method of banishing skin eruptions or building health has yet been found which can equal it. This is because yeast contains certain vital elements which are lacking in the modern diet. Already millions of people have secured amazing benefits from yeast. Recently, however, a new process has been discovered called "Ironization," through which people are securing benefits from yeast in just half the usual time. This process, embodied only in Ironized Yeast, helps instantly convert the vital yeast elements into firm tissue and rich pure blood. If weak, thin or run-down—or if troubled with pimples, blackheads or boils, it will pay you to try Ironized Yeast at once. Try Ironized Yeast entirely free simply mail postcard for Famous 3-Day FREE Test. DRUGGIST MAKES GREAT DISCOVERY FOR INDIGESTION

New Cordial Called "Anti-Ferment," Originated By a Druggist and Recommended by Physicians, Neutralizes Acid Condition of Stomach, Prevents Fermentation and Brings Instant Relief.

Indigestion and its attendant ills, such as dyspepsia, heart-burn, sour stomach, griping pains, dysentery, diarrhoea, colic, cholera morbus, chronic constipation, gas, etc., and even sick, nervous headaches are now directly traceable to disorders in the digestive organs.

The food stores before it is fully digested, thus putting into solution toxic poisons that are absorbed into the system, irritating the intestines and causing intestinal inflammation. To avoid this, you simply have to prevent fermentation by using Anti-Ferment. Anti-Ferment neutralizes the acid condition of the stomach, cleanses and sweetens the bowels, soothes and heals the inflamed intestines and increases the flow of gastric juices, giving quick and certain relief. Get a bottle of Anti-Ferment from your druggist with a guarantee of satisfactory results or money returned. It will improve your appetite, give you restful sleep and make you feel better than you ever felt in your life.—adv.

Lengthy Docket In Police Court

A large number of cases accumulated on the police docket yesterday and Sunday and the Mayor's court was in session for an hour and a half this morning. The court room was crowded with spectators.

L. O. Taylor was fined $10 and costs and Richard Fox was fined $15 and costs for creating a disturbance in John street. The two men were said to have been drunk and entered residents' homes and created disturbance by using language and trying to provoke fights. Fox is alleged to have struck a child.

Fines of $10 and costs were imposed on C. A. Shelton and J. C. Curry for violations of the liquor laws.

Lee Bullboy was fined $50 and costs for driving an automobile while intoxicated. Fred Prather, who owned the machine in which a half gallon of whiskey was found, was fined $10 and costs for violating the Mapp act. Harry Smith, colored, also a passenger in the car, merely drew a line for being drunk. Sergeant Martin and Patrolman W. F. Kessler saw the car and noticed that the men were under the influence of whiskey. This was at the corner of Main and Broad streets. They called on the driver and told the latter that he was not to drive. The police then gave chase and caught them near Chestnut street. All tried to lay the blame for having the whiskey on the other. The two white men said that the liquor was not theirs when they were lighter than the ones who did. James Wilson, Willie Reed, and James Keen, were assessed $2.50 and costs, which amounted to $156.95, each.

Ernest Thomas was fined $5 and costs. Fifteen dollars and costs was the amount imposed on Will Dorcus and Jimbo Holland. The officers could not swear that Joe Hairston and H. K. Myers were in the game and these two were freed on denying the charge. Cecil Hughes did not answer to his name.

Doc Wilson, colored, was fined $10 and costs for violating the Mapp act. A fine of $30 and costs was imposed on Joe Pinnix, colored, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Pinnix's arrest was on an old charge. Many months ago he is said to have raised a disturbance with his wife and others in the local hotel where he and she worked and that Pinnix drew a gun but made his getaway before officers arrived. He has been in South Boston since, he says.

The case against Harry Snead, charged with assaulting Jim Talley was set for next Monday. Snead was bonded under the sum of $100. Talley, who is charged with violating the Mapp act will also be given a hearing Monday.

James Mills, fined $10 and costs for violating the Mapp act. A similar amount was assessed E. D. Durand on the same charge.

M. C. Vernon fined $16.95 for speeding.

Lloyd Wayne was held for the grand jury for felonious assault on his wife and daughter.

Assault Case Is Set For Monday

The charge of assault brought against Harry Snead, city chain gang guard, who is alleged to have used the butt of his pistol in clubbing Jim Talley, whom he was arresting Saturday night on Canal street, for an alleged violation of the Mapp act, has been postponed until next Monday. Bond of $100 was required. The delay was occasioned by the inability of Talley to be present. He has been removed to his home from the hospital, where he was treated, for wounds about the head.

Mayor Wooding said this morning that the investigation of the shooting of a negro prisoner recently by Snead while the latter was escaping, will be laid before the grand jury, the purpose being to determine whether or not guards who are given arms to prevent the escape of prisoners should use them. The wounded negro has since recovered.

City Engineer R. K. Linville said yesterday that he had given instructions to Frank Cousins to replace Snead with another guard soon after the shooting took place. The reason why this has not already been done, the city engineer says, is because Cousins, who has charge of the chain gang, which is now quarrying rock for the city streets, has been unable to secure a competent man to take Snead's place. Snead's removal was ordered by Linville when it became known that charges were docketed against Snead in the federal court for violating the national prohibition law. Cousins said that he thought it unfair to remove the man pending trial, adding that he was one of the best guards he ever had. The instructions given to Cousins, according to the city engineer, now are to close the quarry if it is impossible to secure another man.

Talley and Snead had an altercation on Saturday afternoon, and later Snead undertook the arrest of Talley when he found, it is alleged, a flask of whiskey in his pocket. Talley tried to escape and it was in a rough and tumble affair that Snead drew his revolver and clubbed Talley. Snead, although not a member of the police force, is given police powers by the mayor, and these have not been revoked since the bootlegging charges became known.

Four Girls Have A Narrow Escape

Four young girls narrowly escaped death yesterday in Barnett's pond, near Roxboro, N. C., when a boat in which they were sitting capsized and precipitated them into the water. The young Danville men were there at the time and probably prevented a loss of life. One of the men was Blackwell, and the other was Dr. Geuricy, his initials being unobtainable. The two young men held the girls, who were thoroughly frightened, afloat until aid could arrive, but being quite exhausted by their effort in preventing the girls from drowning, the names of the young women were not ascertained, but it is said that they were not from Danville. A number of people went to Barnett's pond to spend Sunday.

Negro Is Found Brutally Slain In Henry County

News of an atrocious murder which took place near Martinsville last night, was received here this afternoon. Don Reeves, and a daughter of George Clark, the murdered man, are in jail as result of the killing. All are colored.

Only meagre details could be learned of the killing this afternoon. Clark was found in bed last night with his throat cut and his head badly beaten, evidently with a chair-round, which was found near by.

Investigation revealed that Clark was a farm hand on Aubrey Tuzigle's plantation. The farm owner had been bothered with hippie trespassing on his land, especially persons going in bathing and fishing in the river. He had instructed Clark on yesterday to keep all persons away from the river. Don Reeves made his appearance yesterday afternoon for the purpose of fishing. Clark told him what he had been ordered to do and the two were soon in a heated argument, but so far as known there was no fight on the scene. It was said that Clark's daughter was near the scene.

It was at first generally believed that Clark's daughter had done the killing, but for what reason it was not learned. However, she finally made a statement telling of the argument on the river bank, this involving Reeves. Both she and Reeves were lodged in jail and in the meantime a further investigation will be made.

Clark was found dead late last night, but by whom could not be learned this afternoon.

Strange Anomalies In Criminal Law

BAITMORE, July 2.—Several startling anomalies of Maryland criminal law were cited by Raymond S. Williams in his address before the Maryland State Bar Association at Atlantic City. Among them were the following:

The most highly trained practitioners seldom appear in criminal cases if, indeed, they appear in the courts at all.

The law of larceny as daily administered in Baltimore was ancient when Queen Elizabeth was a girl.

If you give a friend a chest of silver to keep for you and he steals the whole, he has committed no crime. If he breaks the lock and takes only the silver, he may be sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary.

If the same friend picks a basket of apples in your orchard and carries them away, he is not guilty of larceny. If, after picking the apples, he leaves them on the ground overnight and then takes them away, he has become a felon.

If the same friend decamps with a lion or an elephant worth $10,000, no larceny has been committed; but if he contents himself with a 50-cent chicken, he steps across the fatal boundary.

If a murdered commits suicide before trial, an acquittal to the crime could never be sentenced. The criminal law of Maryland is both absolutely and relatively inadequate, chaotic and entirely out of touch with modern life.

Leonard S. Dunk, of the American Jersey Cattle Club, arrived here this morning in interest of Jersey cows and to attend a meeting he says will be held here this afternoon. He reports that he found conditions throughout Virginia very favorable.

Bi-State League May Discontinue After Tomorrow

H. E. Spessard, a leading figure in Schoolfield sports and athletics, this morning stated that no definite action has yet been taken to discontinue the Bi-State baseball league, when questioned in regard to a dispatch from Reidsville stating that the league will discontinue after July 4th. Mr. Spessard said that the matter has been and is now being given consideration and that it is likely that the teams will quit the field for the present season, but this has not been definitely decided on as far as he knew. The league, especially the Schoolfield club, is in a bad financial condition.

The following dispatch from Reidsville says:

REIDSVILLE, E. July 2.—At a meeting of the Bi-State league directors last night it was decided that the season will be discontinued with the afternoon games on July 4. Mr. Copeland, representing the Schoolfield club stated that his team would quit the field at that time. J. M. Sharp, Reidsville's director, stated also that unless upon Reidsville would be unable to continue through the second half. Both Burlington and Leaksville representatives were firm for continuing with "the sky as the limit." It is known that at least one of the clubs now has a higher salary scale than the Greensboro team or any other club in the Piedmont league. Burlington and Leaksville, Spray and Burlington are making plans to continue baseball the balance of the season, not, however, as members of the Bi-State league. They will arrange schedules to play with many teams scattered throughout two or three States—the personnel of the teams probably being composed mostly of home talent.

It is believed that next year the Bi-State league will comprise six clubs, duly organized as class D and under the jurisdiction of Judge Landis.

"This season's first half closes on Thursday morning, Bhrington playing at Reidsville and Leaksville-Spray at Schoolfield. Extra games will be played in the afternoon—Reidsville at Burlington and Schoolfield at Leaksville-Play. It looks like Burlington wins the first half, with Leaksville-Spray and Reidsville close seconds."

Flag Tourney At Golf Club

A flag tournament will be held at the golf club tomorrow, July 4th, in which the entire golf playing membership is expected to participate. Each player will receive a flag on which he is expected to pin his name. He will also be given the number of strokes he is entitled to on his club handicap at medal play. When he has used all his strokes, that is his handicap plus 72, the par of the course, he will plant his flag at that spot. The player further advanced will receive first prize. Second and third places will also receive prizes. The revised handicaps based on a par of 72 at medal play with full instructions regarding the tournament will be posted in the locker room this afternoon at 4 p. m. Play in the tournament will begin at 9 a. m. tomorrow and last throughout the day. A player must not engage in any match tomorrow until he has completed his tournament play.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie W. Guill are here on a visit to Mr. Guill's mother. They have resided at Peonix, Ariz. for the past several years.

Negro Held for Grand Jury Action

A charge of simple assault against Lloyd Wayne, a negro was changed to felonious assault by the mayor this morning after the evidence had been revealed and the case was sent to the grand jury. Wayne is charged with attacking his wife, Mattie Wayne, hit her such a blow that she was unconscious for some time and with cutting his daughter, who tried to keep her father from inflicting further beating of her mother.

Mattie Wayne, whose left eye was swollen, testified that her husband became angry because she did not give him money realized from a boarder. She says he struck her a terrific blow in the eye, knocking her unconscious. When she regained consciousness, she says her daughter was bleeding profusely from a wound on the arm, inflicted by Wayne. She told of threats made on her life by her husband from time to time.

The girl when placed on the stand broke down in tears and told of her father's attack on her mother and how he threatened to kill them both. She said she was holding him in an effort to keep him off her mother when he cut her. Even after she was wounded she said she did not let him loose. Finally he gained his freedom and got women, the girl says, attacked him with dishes and any other obstacles they found in reach.

The man's wife told of a brutal treatment of her some time ago for which he was fined $50 and costs.

FROM INFANCY TO LIFE'S SUNSET TANLAC BRINGS HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

Nature's Blessings Are Open to All, and It Seems Inexcusable for Anyone to Remain a Miserable Weakling When This Great Medicine Is Restoring Vim, Vigor and Abundant Vital Energy to Hundreds All Around Them Every Day.

The foundation of health is laid during the early years of life.

From the tiny toddler with foot hesitancy placed upon the bottom-most step, to the venerable grandfather at the top of Life's stairway, Tanlac is praised by all for the vim, vigor and abundant vital energy with which it blesses each step.

The earlier in life that one begins the use of Tanlac, the better equipped will that person be to cope with the vicissitudes of this existence. By preparing the digestive system of the youngster Tanlac smooths the path and insures health and strength through all the years ahead. We cannot forget that the foundation for good health in our advanced years is laid during the early years of life.

How sad it is to see men and women by the thousands going through life with less than half of the vigorous health, strength and capacity for the enjoyment that is their birthright. And how much sadder it is to know that all their sufferings and lack of happiness are due to their own failure to take advantage of the blessing that Nature offers to all. When one looks upon a weak, worn out, faded, devitalized man or woman and reflects that all this may be readily and satisfactorily changed merely by the use of Tanlac, it only that poor mortal knew it, one feels like spreading the message of hope and joy that Tanlac brings in the sharpest and clearest handwriting that none may overlook.

Are YOU as young and healthy as you should be? Have you that abundant vital energy that enables you to laugh at disease and to overcome the ever-present obstacles in the path of your happiness? Does your food give up to you its rich stores of vitality or does it pass through your digestive system without supplying you with much beyond the poisons formed through its decomposition?

Take this under your serious consideration, and answer these questions for yourself. Then, if the answers are unsatisfactory, go to any druggist and purchase a bottle of Tanlac, and you, too, may become strong and healthy with the energy and vitality to accomplish your desires, just as so many thousands of others have publicly testified were the results they obtained from taking Tanlac.

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Taft Rival To Sims As Popular Man In Britain

LONDON, July 1.—(By The Associated Press.)—Chief Justice Taft is the only American visitor to England in the last few years who has rivaled Admiral Sims in popularity with the British public. To those who knew Mr. Taft in his presidential years he proved a disappointment in the point of physical dimensions, but to those who met him for the first time he was a delightful surprise. His unassuming good humor, genial smile and unassuming ways are quite distinct from the mental picture the average Englishman carries of one occupying a high judicial rank—Lord Birkenhead, Britain's youngest lord chancellor, being a recent exception.

The word "chuckle" has been more commonly heard and seen in England since Mr. Taft's advent, as the report says, is the only term used to describe the jovialities with which the chief justice gives his auditors warning that he is on the verge of telling another anecdote. A theatrical manager, sensing the world's enhanced value, has brought out a show entitled "Chuckles."

Almost every honor list in recent years has provoked criticism of the high titles given to men who have no apparent claim to them except their great wealth, and the suggestion is made with increasing frankness that noblemen are created in return for large contributions to party funds, the same tale which at one time was possible of appointments to the American diplomatic service.

The fact that the bestowal of honors is nominally a prerogative of the king, although the nominations are made by the prime minister, has made prominent persons reluctant to distinguish themselves upon action of the crown. The king's recent birthday list, however, has heretofore been reluctant to comment on the subject, partly through pride, although the lords object to any dilution of their own which would cheapen its prestige.

On this occasion, the lords led the way in outspoken debate, and although the House of Commons followed their example, the lords' criticisms have been more personal than usual, being mostly directed against J. B. Robinson, South African millionaire.

Early in the administration of Prime Minister Lloyd George it was promised that appointments would be coupled with statements giving the reasons for which the honors were bestowed. In Mr. Robinson's case the reasons given were "for national and imperial services."

The Earl of Selborne and the Earl of Buxton, who have held official positions in South Africa, declared they had never known Mr. Robinson to render such services. Much was said about a law suit brought in 1915, in which Mr. Robinson was accused of buying property for the company, of which he was chairman, and reselling it to the same company at a large profit. He was ordered by the court to pay a sum which was the difference, amounting to more than $500,000.

The newspapers have charged that the recipient of a minor honor removed the headquarters of a big business from Berlin during the war to escape taxation, and boasted of the fact.

Some of the members of the Commons pressed the premier to give a day for debate on the subject, but Mr. Lloyd George refused, on the ground that there were no sufficient time at the present session, which was already overcrowded with work.

For the first time in Lady Astor's career as a legislator cries for a speaker were heard when she rose to speak the other day. Earlier in the session she had spoken rather leniently on the subject of widows' pensions, and the house registered impatience when she arose the second time.

"You'll be here all night if you go on like that," said the speaker, after calmly waiting for the shouts to cease. A moment later the laugh was on her, for she began:

"I have risen to remind some of the members who are not here for Lady Astor has a new hat for parliament, of black straw, with a smart turn of the brim. According to the counts carefully kept by lobby gossipers, this is only the third the first woman Commoner has had since taking her seat.

The unemployed of London's socialistic borough of Poplar are again in the limelight as a result of a deputation to the mayor asking that the unemployed be supplied with sport shoes for use on the borough's bowling green, where they play daily while away their working hours.

The deputation asked that the shoes be purchased with funds from the children's boot fund which is subscribed to by all classes of citizens in the borough.

This mayor emphatically declined the petition and asked the deputation what the public and the parents of children would think if any part of the funds they had subscribed were used for such purposes. He also told them that 13,000 pounds was disposed for the relief of the Poplar last week.

Although some of the British battalions under the terms of the Washington conference treaty will not participate in any more wars they will serve as useful targets for the thrafter in perfecting war methods.

Announcement has been made in the House of Commons that it is proposed to carry out experiments with various kinds of attacks from the air against capital ships. The experiments are to be carried out on the doomed cruiser Superb, but they will be preceded by experiments on the Monitor, which did not come under the treaty.

MELONS ARE HIGH DESPITE THE LOW PRICES ON FARM

NEW YORK, July 1.—Watermelons for which Georgia growers are glad to get from 3 to 17 1/2 cents each, are selling in the retail market here at 70 cents to $1.50, said a statement issued today by Herschel S. Jones, director of the State department of farms and markets.

High freight rates, almost equally high cartage charges and the "bum" taken in turn by four middlemen, make up the difference, he said. The freight cost is about 17 cents a melon, and the cartage cost for transporting the melons from the receiving station at Karney, N. J., is about 8 cents.

The four middlemen get the rest. The high prices are causing the melons to move very slowly in the New York market, he said, despite a campaign his department has been trying to induce New Yorkers to help the Georgia farmers out with their bumper crop, by eating lots of melons.

AS TO COLLEGE EDUCATION

(Lynchburg News.)

Now that the boys are back from college for the summer vacation the doubt arises whether all of them are receiving what is most essential to a college education for all is a high ideal, just as it was a noble ideal to welcome immigrants to our shores from every land. We already have begun, however, to do this and to consider the immigrants and to consider whether they are wanted as well as whether they want to come. This would have been considered very un-American before he war. But the necessity for it and the wisdom of it already have gained some of the like-minded agent.

As to the matter of a college education the situation has somewhat changed within recent years. Most young men used to go to college because they wanted to get an education and were willing to work for it. And while they were training and disciplining their minds through study and developing the powers which then they received the inspiration to strive for the higher and nobler things of life. Their college preparation completed, they went forth to achieve, and to take their places among the foremost citizens of their respective communities.

But no longer do the student bodies of many institutions composed as in the past almost wholly of young men and women with a strong desire for education and the will to get it despite financial difficulties, which were common, and of parental opposition, which was not uncommon. A good many now go to college for reasons with which the acquisition of knowledge has little to do. That some of them could utilize their time better elsewhere—are not made noticeably wiser or better by four years only nominally devoted to study—at least a possibility. As desirable and important as we know a college education is, we have to admit that some are spoiled by it. Education was never more essential to success than it is now, but unless a young man sets up his ideals and is willing to work to translate them into character and service, what he learns at college is likely to prove a mischievous rather than a benefit to him. You cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

REPLIES TO "UP AND DOING."

Callands, Va. June 30, 1922.

Editor Danville Register:—I read your article in the Danville Register of May 28, in which you were advising the citizens of Danville to be "Up and Doing" in regard to the farmers' organization of co-operative marketing. But considering the fact that the farmers of Pittsylvania county, with the hearty co-operation of the business people of Chatham, now for the past year, is it not a rather late day for the people of Danville to begin to consider "Up and Doing?"

The business people of Chatham are stood by us from the very beginning in our effort to get the farmers of the county to sign the co-operative marketing pledge, and as an organizer myself, I wish to say that some of the Chatham people have given me invaluable assistance in my work. And now that the Chatham people have stood by us, we feel that it is our duty to stand by them and I believe that the people of this section are going to sell their tobacco at Chatham.

We do not wish the people of Danville to feel that we are, in any way, remedied against them for their failure to sign an active interest in the success of our organization, but we do feel that since the farmers of Pittsylvania county have stood by Danville in the past and have contributed largely to the success of the city, that when the farmers decided that we wanted a change in the way in which we sold our tobacco in an effort to make the greatest success of our business, that the citizens of Danville, as a whole, might have been more enthusiastic in their support of our organization.

We hope to see every man of Pittsylvania county at Chatham on July 14th, for we feel that it is our duty to something that will assist the industry of Pittsylvania county to be a greater success. Very truly yours,

C. B. SHORTER.

Scoop's Colyum

DRAKES BRANCH, July 3.—(Grapevine Wireless).—Elbert Hubbard had a trick of writing a particularly good epigram and signing the name of an illustrious person to it.

The most famous of these houses was: "If a man writes a better book, preaches a better sermon, or makes a better mouse-trap, than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

To this he signed the name of Emerson, and it proved to be about the most popular Emerson quotation. Hubbard later explained that "it was the sort of thing Emerson would have said if he had thought of it." He added that it was less reprehensible to give a great man undeserved credit than to steal from his writings without.

Hubbard's ink has now written the last chapter in the history of this hoax by locating in Emerson's writings a passage which shows that the Concord man had the best idea of the value of Emerson's Journals.

"I trust a good deal to common fame, as we all must. If a man has good corn, or wood, or boards, or pigs to sell, or can make better chairs, or knives, or crucibles, or church organs than anybody else, you will find a broad, hard-beaten road to this house, though it be in the woods."

So the saying was really Emerson's after all.

This explains why a moonshiner does not have to advertise.

An oil promoter stepped off the accommodation train early one morning, just as the train pulled into a little country town down in Arkansas. His intention was, evidently, to stroll up and down the cinder-platted water.

Noticing a lone figure at the far end of the platform, he addressed him thus: "Well, my good brother, isn't this a pretty dead town?"

Spitting torridly across the platform before turning to the speaker, the figure answered: "It hasn't never been alive yet."

CHAPTER IX

"Do you know," said Clime,

"that I am waiting for the explanation which I think you owe me?"

They were alone together, lingering still at the table to which Andre-

Louis had come belatedly.

"Explanation?" he questioned.

"But on what score?"

"On the score of the deception you have practiced on us—on me. You should not have pretended to be a simple country lawyer, which of course, any one could see that you are not."

"I see," he said, and pulled at his pipe. "But you are wrong. Climemene. I am neither more nor less than a simple country lawyer."

"Hah! And that fine lady who carried you off in her cabriolet? What is she to you?"

"A sort of sister," said he.

"A sort of sister?" She was indignant. "Harlequin foretold that you would say so; but he was amusing himself. She has a name, I suppose, this sort of sister?"

"Certainly she has a name. She is Mlle. Alina de Kercadiou. Lord of Gavrilac."

"Oh! That's a sufficiently fine name for your sort of sister. What sort of sister, my friend?"

For the first time in their relationship he observed and deplored the taint of vulgarity, of shrewdness, in her manner.

"Her uncle, M. de Kercadiou, is my godfather. It is popularly believed in Gavrilac that M. de Kercadiou is my father. He has certainly cared for my rearing from my tenderest years. I owe to him everything that I have—no, rather, everything that I had. Today I possess nothing save what I can earn for myself in the theater or elsewhere."

She sat stunned and pale under that cruel blow to her swelling pride.

"You should have told me this before," she said, in a dull voice that she strove to render steady.

"Perhaps I should. But does it really matter?"

"Matter?" She suppressed her fury to ask another question: "You say that M. de Kercadiou is popularly believed to be your father.

What precisely do you mean?"

"Just that. It is a belief that I do not share. It is a matter of instinct, perhaps, with me. Moreover, once

I asked M. de Kercadiou point-blank, and I received from him a denial."

"And your mother, was she equally ignorant?" She was sneering, but he did not remark it. Her back was to the light.

"He would not disclose her name to me. He confessed her to be a dear friend of his."

She started him by laughing, and her laugh was not pleasant.

"A very dear friend, you may be sure, my simpleton. What name do you bear?"

He restrained his own rising indignation to answer her question calmly: "Moreau. It was given me, so I am told, from the Brittany village in which I was born. In fact,

I have no name, unless it be Scara-mouche, to which I have earned a title. So that you see, my dear," he ended with a smile, "I have practiced no deception whatever."

thought of Alina's conduct toward him kept rankling, and still more deeply rankled the thought of her possible betrothal to M. de La Tour d'Azyr.

This it was that brought forcibly to his mind the self-imposed but by now half-forgotten mission that he had made his own. He had boasted that he would make the voice which

M. de La Tour d'Azyr had sought to silence ring through the length and breadth of the land. What a fine contrast between the promise and the fulfillment!

It happened that the first person

he saw when he took the stage on that Thursday evening was Alina;

the second was the Marquis de La

Tour d'Azyr. They occupied a box on the right of, and immediately

above, the stage.

That was the evening's first shock.

The next came after the second act.

Entering the green-room he found

at the far end with Clime, over

whom he was bending from his fine

height, his eyes intent upon her face.

M. de La Tour d'Azyr.

That night there were high words

between Andre-Louis and Clime,

the high words proceeding from Clime.

When Andre-Louis again enjoined prudence upon his betrothed, she shocked and stunned him by her virulently shrewd tone, and her still more unexpected force of invective.

"I'll not tolerate your insensate jealousy," she said in the theater must make it her business to accept homage from all."

"Agreed; and there is no harm, provided she gives nothing in exchange."

White-faced, with flaming eyes,

she turned on him at that.

"How? You dare?"

"I know M. de La Tour d'Azyr," he answered her. "He is a man who takes what he wants wherever he finds it and whether it is given willingly or not; a man who reckons nothing of the misery he scatters on his self-indulgent way. Ponder it,

Clime, and ask yourself if I do you less than honor in warning you."

He went out on that, feeling a degradation in continuing the subject.

On Tuesday of the following week,

Andre-Louis ran into a slightly built, sallow-complexioned gentleman very neatly dressed in black.

"Moreau! Where the devil have you been hiding yourself these months?"

Chapelier had told him of the state of public feeling in the city. They were playing "The Terrible Captain," in the last act of which the empty cowardice of the bully's bravest

Rhodomont is revealed by Scara-mouche.

The laughter which the ex-posure of the roaring captain in variably produced, it remained for Scaramouche contemptuously to dismiss him in a phrase that varied nightly. This time he chose to give his phrase a political complexion:

"Thus, O coward, is your emullousness exposed. Because of your long length and your great sword people have imagined you to be as terrible and as formidable as you insolently make yourself appear. But at the first touch of true spirit, you crumple up, you tremble, you whine pitifully, and the great sword remains in your scabbard. You remind me of the Privileged Orders when confronted by the Third Estate."

It was audacious of him, and he was prepared for anything—a laugh, applause, indignation, or all together.

But he was not prepared for what came. And it came so suddenly and spontaneously from the groundlings and the body of those in the amphtheater that he was almost scared

by it—as a boy may be scared who has held a match to a sun-scalded hayrick. It was a hurricane of furious applause. Men leapt to their feet, sprang up to the benches, waving their hats in the air, deafening him with the terrific uproar of their acclamations. And it rolled on and on, not ceased until the curtain fell.

"WHAT PRECISELY DO YOU MEAN?" SHE ASKED

above, the stage.

That was the evening's first shock.

The next came after the second act.

Entering the green-room he found

at the far end with Clime, over

whom he was bending from his fine

height, his eyes intent upon her face.

M. de La Tour d'Azyr.

That night there were high words

between Andre-Louis and Clime,

the high words proceeding from Clime.

French General Becomes a Prince

PARIS, July 1.—(By The Associated Press)—A brigadier general in the French army becomes the prince of Monaco by virtue of the death this week of Prince Albert. Prince Louis, son and heir to the late prince, is a graduate of St. Cyr, the French West Point. He served with the French colonial forces with which he went through the campaign of 1914 as captain of the African chasseurs. He finished his service in the war as lieutenant colonel of a regiment of the foreign legion, composed of none but real fighters. He was a tactical leader and was considered capable of managing those troops who were as difficult to handle as they were hard to beat in battle. So it is thought that the prince will be equal to the task of handling the 13,000 inhabitants of the little Mediterranean principality and its few dozens of men composing the army and police, as well as that other "foreign legion" which maintains the roulette wheel at Monte Carlo.

Prince Louis, although unmarried, has a daughter who was formerly accepted into the princely family in 1919 with all the rights to succession. He was married to the duchess of Valentign, after which she married Count Polignac, who became a subject of Monaco under the new name of Prince de Grimaldi.

The late Prince Albert held a score of titles besides that of Prince of Monaco, but the one he was most proud of was that of member of the French academy of medicine and the institute, to which he was admitted in recognition of his famous deep sea soundings.

He was a great admirer of America and American ways. He even took for his second wife the dowager duchess of Richelieu, who was Miss Alice Heine of New York after his first marriage with lady Douglass Hamilton, mother to Prince Louis. The marriage was dissolved. The second marriage also was discovered by a Monaco court.

Of the 100,000 Paris of the Longchamps races last Sunday comparatively few saw the grand prix run, but nearly all caught a glimpse of the emperor of Annam, Khai Dinh, in a gorgeous costume of red and gold, sitting alongside President Millerand and a few ran across Lord Derby, former British Ambassador.

The latter was kept in the background during his visit to Paris since he left the embassy, but has remained true to the French turf, where his colors are so popular. His gray Billy Frisky, although unplaced, was cheered as well as the winner upon returning to the paddock and Lord Derby was there to look her over.

President Millerand came along to congratulate the Greek shipping magnate, Nambatielos, owner of Keefaling, the winner, when he spied the former ambassador. Pushing through the crowd he locked arms with him and remarked:

"Why have you made yourself so scarce? One is obliged to come to the races to find you."

Like another colonial protégé of France, King Sisowath of Cambodia who came to Paris before the war, the emperor of Annam greatly enjoyed the races. Etiquette required that he leave the track when President Millerand retired after the grand prix, but he refused.

"I want to see them all, every one," he said, "and I know there are six on the card."

Maurice Donnay felt himself in a strange predicament among the American dramatists and theatrical producers of his recent visit to New York, he says in an article regarding the United States about to appear in the Revue Des Deux Mondes.

They do not see the field for psychological study that we see in the much talked of "triangle" of the husband, wife and lover," he writes. "They are very severe on sexual morals and know as little of the French theatre as we know of theirs."

They like comic, pathetic or quick action, and rapid dialogue above all action, with happy endings that do not infringe on the social order.

"But," adds M. Donnay, "after an American lady had on my recommendation read some works on the French theatre, she said: 'I understand now. The French say these things,' while the Americans do them."

Among the stage novelties of the forthcoming season will be a piece called "Judith" by Henri Bernstein, who since the war has contended himself with theatrical management. His reappearance as a dramatist coincides with the reentry into the public view of an old adversary in former Premier Caillaux with whom he had a moving encounter when Bernstein was a witness for the prosecution in the trial of Madame Cal-

30 Cents a Bushel On Wheat Added In Tariff Bill

WASHINGTON, July 1.—By a vote of 15 to 12, the Senate approved today a tariff of 30 cents on wheat.

Democratic leaders declared during the debate which preceded the vote that this rate would cost the American people $100,000,000. Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, in charge of the measure, stating frankly the purpose of the rate was to keep above the world level the price of Northern spring wheat from the Dakota and Minnesota, said he did not think the tariff proposed would be carried on to the consumer, but even if it was, it would not amount to two dollars a year to each consumer.

Minority leaders sweltered through a four hours' fight against the wheat rate, talking most of the time to practically empty seats. Despite the fight, however, the majority split on the final vote, Senators Jones of New Mexico, and Hendrick of Wyoming, voting with the solid Republican majority for the committee rate which is an increase of five cents over the House rate, but a decrease of five cents from the existing emergency tariff duty.

With the wheat rate out of the way, the Senate made unusually rapid progress on the bill, approving several scores of committee amendments. The first to be agreed upon was a duty of 78 cents per one hundred pounds on flour, an increase of 28 cents over the House rate. Other rates approved included:

Irish potatoes, 58 cents per 100 pounds. House rate 42 cents; Dried, 23-4 cents a pound. House rate 31-5 cents; Flour, 3 cents a pound. House rate 11-2 cents.

Tomato paste, 45 per cent. ad valorem. House rate 23; tomatoes preserved in any manner, 15 per cent. House rate 10 per cent.

Cocoa 1 cent per pound; House rate 75 cents per 100 pound.

Cocoanuts were transferred to the free list, but cocoanut meat, prepared, was made dutiable at 4 cents a pound, against the House rate of 412 cents.

Rates on prepared fruits were increased generally over both the House figures and those originally recommended by the committee.

THE PRESIDENT INTERCEDES FOR DOG OF ALIEN

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 1.—The president of the United States and Mrs. Harding, and Governor Spruill of Pennsylvania, it became known today, interceded for the life of a dog that was supposed to have been condemned to death at Lansdale, Pa., because it was owned by an alien, contrary to Pennsylvania law. The dog's life had been saved and the alien, Jacob Silverman, a farmer, fined $25 before the presidential appeal reached Justice of the Peace Howard Bpore. The alien has taken an appeal from the fine, and "Dick" Silverman, part St. Bernard and part Mastiff, is in the care of the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

The President in his appeal to the governor said:

"I think you will have to count this letter a personal one, rather than an official communication. I write it at the suggestion of Mrs. Harding, though I am happy to do so, because of the appeal which has greatly stirred her touches me no less forcibly."

"I enclose you the anonymous letter and the newspaper clipping which came to Mrs. Harding. If the story is correct, a Russian immigrant has a faithful dog which he loves, and because his possession of the dog is contrary to the state law the devoted animal has been sentenced to be shot."

"I have tried to put myself, loving a good dog as I do, in the position of this poor immigrant and I know the perturbation that fills his soul: 'I once had to have a dog killed that I greatly loved, and I recall it to this day as the sorest trial of my life.'"

"I am not familiar with the law invoked. According to the newspapers, an alien is not permitted to own a dog. Surely there must be some way to comply with the spirit of the law and allow this poor foreigner to retain his treasured animal friend."

"If it came within my executive authority, I would gladly grant a pardon to the dog, and I would suggest that there is good and ample reason for a statute which makes this dog an unlawful possession, but I have an abiding faith that the man who loves his dog to the extent that he will grieve for him has in him the qualities which will make him a loyal citizen."

"Mrs. Harding and I are both pleased to appeal for some form of clemency in this case, and hope this note is not to elate to enable us to add our appeal in behalf of both Silverman and his dog."

Governor Spruill immediately wired the justice of the peace and also telegraphed the president, assuring him that "Dick" would be reprieved.

Miss Dorothy Thomas has returned home from Westhampton College.

Mrs. Turner Hamlin, is at Chattanooga, New York, to spend some time.

New Zealand Breakfast Hour Set By Ticking of Bordeaux Clock

WELLINGTON, N. Z., July 1.—Since the middle of March the New Zealand government astronomer has had to adjust his breakfast hour to the ticking of a clock at Bordeaux, France. Under an international agreement exact Greenwich time is flashed from the great wireless station at Bordeaux at 8:30 o'clock each evening. New Zealand time is 11 hours ahead of French time, so that the signal reaches New Zealand at 7:30 o'clock in the morning. It is the task of Dr. C. E. Adams, government astronomer, to take the time, make any correction that may be necessary in the official clocks and then broadcast Greenwich time for the use of anybody in the South Pacific who may require it.

Wellington lies in a cup of the hills. High on a ridge overlooking the city and the harbor are the towers of one of the big government wireless stations, but the busy operators there are not required to listen for the time. The observatory on a lower ridge of the hills has its own aerials and receiving set, and there the time signals are taken.

Wellington and Bordeaux are just about as far apart as the dimensions of the world will permit them to get. But as the government astronomer "tunes out" the chattering that comes to him from Australia and America, Germany and Japan and Africa, the time signals are taken.

A. C. L. EXPECTS TO MAINTAIN A FULL SERVICE

WILMINGTON, N. C., July 1.—With the statement that he regarded the strike of railway shopmen against the government and not the railroads, President John R. Kenly of the Atlantic Coast Line said tonight that with the men remaining at work his company will be able to maintain full passenger service and handle the most essential freight business.

H. N. Pace, secretary of the Wilmington machinists union, said tonight that the 300 men employed in the shops here, only four failed to respond to the strike call. Persons coming here to fill the places of the striking men will be informed of the situation, but no physical effort will be made to prevent them going to work, Mr. Pace said.

THINGS ON SOU. ARE ALL RIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Officials of the Southern railway said tonight in connection with the rail strike that "things are running along smoothly" and that "there has been no interruption of traffic."

Union men said the strike was 100 per cent. effective. The Alexandria shops of the Southern and in the Potomac yards, a claim which was not denied by officials at either place.

Company officials said no effort would be made to fill the places of the men who had walked out, but that pickets were established by the union men around the various shops here.

ROADS SHOW IN COMING

RICHMOND, Va., July 1—More than three months have elapsed since the legislature adjourned, and at that time there was a declaration that the whole State was wrought up over the matter of bond issues, and that as soon as the members got back home they would hear from the people. Governor Trimble is strong for roads, and he wants a bond issue. But there has yet been no step that gives rise to any belief that the matter will receive attention in time for anything to be done before the cold weather of winter. Many of the members who voted against the bond issue are said to have changed front, but there has been no call for a special session. The fact is that there are many vacancies in the Senate, and it is known that special elections will have to be held before there is a convoking of the lawmaking power of the Old Dominion. The people are still after roads, but there is an end to the enthusiasm that swept the country the last two years. It so happens that in all of the vacancies in the Senate the members had voted for the issue of bonds for road purposes.

Dependable Motor Main Problem In The Helicopter

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The helicopter, or vertical-rising air machine, is not an impossibility, and should a real use for such a type arise successful ones may be seen before many years according to Dr. Albert F. Zahm, aeronautical expert for the Navy. Had there been a need for the helicopter during the war he said any of several types could have been perfected, of which the German machine was the best. Dr. Zahm is an expert on design and construction of such machines as flying machines. For years he has applied his time to perfection of the airplane, and is well qualified to pass upon the capabilities of any.

Much interest has been shown of late in reports of successful machines of the helicopter type being perfected in both Germany and England. However, while some flights have been made, none of any consequence are reported by a machine equipped with horizontal propellers of revolving planes, designed to rise vertically from a confined space and descend on the same.

That the helicopter is possible, Dr. Zahm is proved by the German machine, which rising several times to moderate heights has carried observers, remained almost stationary while in air and descended in safety. The machine, however, has made no extended flights and has proved its dependability but was tethered to the ground by a mooring rope. At times, when the motors failed the machine dropped and the passengers saved themselves only by leaping with parachutes.

The experiments are continuing, however, with the purpose of perfecting a motor which can be depended upon to maintain the machine without sudden failure. The scientists explain, for, as soon as the engine stops, the machine cannot glide to the ground, as does an air plane but vertically. In a proper descent the propellers should be whirled slowly to ease the landing.

Present hopes of attaining successful vertical flight rest mainly upon the endeavors of Emil Berliner, Washington inventor whose experiment with the helicopter have extended over a long time and of Louis Brennan of London whose newest machine is reported as nearing completion. He is working to win the fifty thousand pound prize offered by the British Air Ministry for successful flight.

The helicopters upon which most experimentation has been made, consist mainly of two or more propeller screws mounted horizontally on a vertical shaft, bearing engines fuel and passengers. Equal numbers of propeller blades must revolve in opposite directions that the body of the machine may not spin like a top. The motors tanks and body have been mounted in various positions, but the German machine has a sort of pulpit car mounted at the top of the shaft over the propellers for the operations.

Whether or not this type of machine is brought to actual use, Dr. Zahm stated at least two other types of planes that may fly vertically have been offered to the government. This fact is not widely known.

One of these, of which Dr. Zahm observed experiments with a working model, was identical with the present type of plane, except that mounted behind the body were two sets of air vanes, in groups, tilted at an adjustable angle, like those of Venetian blinds.

When the power was turned on he said, the "wash" of the air stream from the propellers, pushing against these groups of vanes caused the model to rise gently vertically. The model was held in mid-air by the action, and when the power diminished it returned gently to earth. A full size machine of the type he said would be equipped with engines of immense power, in order to furnish sufficient pressure and when driven to a sufficient altitude, the vanes would be so adjusted that horizontal motion would result. The planes could then fly in the usual manner finally using the vanes again to descend vertically.

The other type offered to the army, he said was of the present wing plan, equipped with three propellers, two placed far out toward the wing ends, and with vertical rudders and horizontal vanes in use. The rudder of the type was to be gained by having the wash of the central propeller act upon elevators on the tail of the body, while the side propellers would be used against the special airfoils on the wing tips.

When in the air, Dr. Zahm continued, this machine could maneuver exactly as does the ordinary plane, cut figures and do stunts besides being able to rest motionless in any desired position—vertical with nose up, if need be.

The best feature, he said is that both planes of the new types are entirely feasible and can be constructed at any time. In fact, several European inventors and manufacturers are patenting designs of the second type, notably the French Blériot, one of the pioneers of aviation.

Experts from the government studied the second type during the war, it was explained, but the matter went no further.

The general drawbacks of their construction, Dr. Zahm said were first, the great cost, second, the increased weight of the machines as compared with present engine efficiency and third, the need of developing motors with greater power and less weight per horsepower and with a greater amount of dependability. As it is he said, a successful helicopter may be flown to any height, but the operators will never know when the engine will give a cough and die away.

The German experimenters, however, he added, have in part overbalanced this disadvantage. It has been determined by experiment that a propeller of three or four narrow blades, caused to revolve by the air pressure during a forced descent with a dead engine, will develop as much resistance as a solid disc of the diameter of the blade spread in addition, the German machine is equipped with air cushions on the landing bottom so that the landing if forced, may be made comparatively easy.

Means of steering experimental helicopters and of which one would undoubtedly be used in a successful machine are two. The first is a means of tilting the propellers shaft or the whole machine, when it will travel in that direction; the second being the use of vanes similar to those already mentioned. With the latter, Dr. Zahm thinks a helicopter sufficiently powered, should be able to cut capers in the air as aviators do at present.

Any of the types advanced, would in warfare, be of great use in bomb dropping or with the latter. The main disadvantage, that of being a good target for artillery fire while stationary, could be offset by quickness of movement from point to point, and short stops while hovering.

Still, Dr. Zahm points out in summing up the fact that the War Department was offered such machines at a time when all resources were being expended in better or more efficient implements of warfare, and rejected them, although they are completely feasible, is sufficient indication of their war value. As to their being put to commercial or social uses, the immense expense precludes the possibility.

"DRY" LAW LAWLESSNESS

(Norfolk Virginian-Tribune)

Dry laws are a peril to the nation in that they indirectly lead to lawlessness reaction say the wets. The dries, on the other hand, disclaim responsibility for such lawlessness in behalf of prohibition laws and contend that offenses against prohibition in themselves constitute a national menace after making due allowance for the extravagance of prejudice and discounting these two contentions by a reasonable per cent, the average observer will be disposed to rate both as partly right and partly wrong. While violations of prohibition laws do not constitute a menace threatening national existence, they undoubtedly create a serious problem for the government to deal with. And while some of these violations may be partially traceable to reaction against prohibition, it does not follow that the blame for the creation of this problem lies wholly at the door of prohibition. Unquestionably, to restrict laws tend to antagonize the public and to breed disregard for the law, and to this extent prohibition is responsible for lawlessness against it. But it is also true that a large number of violations are merely the result of viciousness, and to this extent prohibition is not chargeable with responsibility. It is only with unreasonably severe dry laws that the public has just quarrel—for such legislation inevitably ends to produce a lawless reaction, independent of viciousness.
